oue of the choicest spirits of Western literature: rich, strong, and highly educated and civilized manufacturing countries. An exclusively agri cultural country must be poor and sparsely populated for these reasons: First, it must be poor, because the people cannot profitably produce anything more than they can sell. They must send off for sale all that they cannot consume. else it will spoil on their hands. They receive. in return for the commodities thus sent away. can be no accumulation of capital. Second y. the population must be sparse, because all the people over and above what are necessary to cultivate land enough to furnish exchangeal products must emigrate where their lator will be remunerative. These truths, which philosophy teaches, history illustrat s by exam the people, who do not perceive that the nearer agricultural community the worse their relative osition in the scale of nations, must be insensible alike to the inductions of right reason and the practical lessons taught by the experience of

We have said that free-trade is the natural offspring of free society. We now assert that protection is the legitimate incident to slavery; ney ought to be inseparable. In free society there are only two elements, and these elemen ever have been and ever will be antagonistic They are capital and labor. Capital is always herce but impotent struggles; the warfare is unequal, because capital can wait, but labor cannot. The man who depends on his labor for his daily bread, if he cannot obtain employment, the daughter of a poetes. must either starve or beg in a few days, while he who has capital can always wait until the price of labor is reduced to a figure that sats Admitting to are n w ni- red his views. The result is, that, as population friend in a State where slavery prevais there are 10 capital. The slave, by being elevated as it were And H is that on y ou sweet a land and just antagonism between the master and the slave; their interests are and ought to be regarded as identical. The master heing compelled to maintain his servant in sixtness and old age, it is his interest to take most are additional. There is assect voice that he manter a length compellates reveal to maintain his servant in sickness and old age, it is his interest to take good care of his health and preserve the viger of his constitution unimpaired, so that he may be able to render some service in he old age. On the other hand it is the interest of the slave to render his master just service, so that the latter may be the better able to afford him agenerous support. But, though there may be masters who are not guided by these elevated and enlightened views of policy, there are none who will not concede that they desire to use the labor of their slaves to the best advantage, so as to make the most money they can with it. This can be done only by a division of the labor of the interest of the labor of their slaves to the best advantage, so as to make the most money they can with it. This can be done only by a division of the labor of their slaves to the last advantage, so as to make the most money they can with it. This can be done only by a division of the labor of their slaves to which it is adapted. We are aware there are those who believe that the slave the slave to which it is adapted. The preference of 1 in for agriculture is natural, because the pursuit of a majority of 1,250, being 20 Clay obtained a is simple, requires but little skill and learning, more than the present American majority, but it ble the same locality again for years. and addresses itself to his savage propensity for that freedom from restraint called independence. But the fact is the farmer is the must dependent of all the members of society, for in addition to the usual dependency on each Congress in 1852, but, although he ran as the tions of this will entirely drive them oil or k it they are wet with rain. One or two applications to the usual dependency on each Congress in 1852, but, although he ran as the branch of a divided labor, he is also dependent Whig candidate, he obtained a very heavy G r-them.

the cut-worm, the weevil, the army-worm, the chintz-hug, and many more such enemies may rob the farmer of the reward of his labor. The independence of the farmer is therafore rather fanciful than real.

But, fortunately for the condition of the man race, agriculture cannot be exclusively the pursuit of a civilized people. The whole tribe would then engage in war and the chase, to the utter neglect of fabricating their own implements of prime necessity. Thus is it that free-trade roots out and destroy-manufactures.

The Southern States have ever been the victum of free trade and the dupes of the economists. They have not had the discrimination to perceive that free trade is the natural offspring to the content of the processity of the second war by which certain foreign-both of izens were delayed. war or the chase. The administration have been fully continued, to some time, of the existence of an inderstanding between the governments of Great Britain and France, to the effect that they shall both endeavor to check the commercial and political progress and expansion of the United States. The declaration of the French Emperor, that the cordula understanding between France and Great Britain extended to all matters upon all points of the globe, has never been modified or retracted. The like declaration trom Lord Clarendon has never been explained away in an official manner. Since the date of that declaration, we have witnessed, in four or five different instances, the practical application of its principle by the British and French governments.

that declaration, we have writessed, in fold of five different instances, the practical apple dation of its principle by the British and French governments.

The diplomatic agents of those governments have found it to be a part of their instructions to oppose their earnest protests and throw their rentire influence against any measures whereby the United States might either facultate her commerce, carry out the Mouroe doctrine, or add to her territory. Central America, Samana, the Sandwich I-lands, Cuba, and Ecuador will afford evidence of the practical application of the cordial intention to interfere in our concerns. Very recently the government has come into possession of copies of the correspondence and other papers, showing the fact and the mode of this interference. But this is not all, nor even the most important evidence before the executive government, of the mention of the British and French governments to riterpose their institute of the mode of this metiference. But this is not all, nor even the most important evidence before the executive government, of the mention of the British and French governments to riterpose their institute of the process of the assumption by the secretary of State and the mode of the secretary of State and the mode of the will not row be made public, is supposed in allord decided proofs of the assumption by those governments of an unfriendly and distrespectful attitude in regard to the United States. The exposition made in the Scale on these subjects, by the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs Mr. Mason, was more than justified by the state of facts at that time, to say nothing of what leas occurred since.
